Dear Mr. Chairman:

I am writing in response to your request for the views of this Agency on S. 1893, a bill "To amend the Public Health Service Act to establish a President's Commission for the Protection of Human Subjects of Biomedical and Behavioral Research, and for other purposes."

Insuring the protection of the rights and welfare of human subjects of biomedical and behavioral research sponsored or conducted by the Central Intelligence Agency is a matter of concern to me. Current CIA guidelines require that human subject research be conducted in strict accordance with Department of Health, Education and Welfare regulations and applicable statutes and that each entity conducting research hold an approved assurance from HEW. Thus, existing Agency policy is in accord with the aims of this legislation. The proposed bill would establish a framework to further insure such protection, and I have no objections to the procedures it would establish. There are, however, several problems relating to the handling of sensitive information which I must raise with the Committee.

The provisions of the bill which would require Commission members to obtain all necessary security clearances and forbid the Commission to disclose classified information demonstrate a recognition of the need for protecting information in the interests of national security. Such information may fall into one of two categories: that which is classified pursuant to criteria established by Executive Order, and that which is designated by the Director of Central Intelligence as information involving sensitive intelligence sources and methods pursuant to his statutory responsibility (50 U.S.C. 403). Section 1811(c)(2) proposed by this bill would protect only information which "is properly classified for any purpose by a Federal agency," and therefore could be construed so as not to prohibit the disclosure of all information requiring protection in the interests of national security. This problem would be solved by adding language to forbid disclosure of information protected from disclosure by statute in addition to information classified pursuant to Executive Order.

The Commission would also have the authority to hire experts and consultants and to make grants or enter into contracts for various purposes. The bill presently does not establish security requirements applicable to these persons, and I believe the bill should be amended to state clearly that these experts, consultants or contractors are subject to the same security requirements as the Commission. I believe also that the bill should be amended to prohibit the Human Investigation Review Boards established under section 1805(a) proposed by this bill from disclosing confidential information or information protected from disclosure by statute.

Thank you for this opportunity to express my views.

The Office of Management and Budget has advised there is no objection to the submission of this report from the standpoint of the Administration's program.

Yours sincerely,

/s/ Stansfield Turner
